We enjoy European funding.
But we enjoy more working with people #

what people say

At the Centre for Innovation Management and Enterprise (CIME) at the University of East London we have a wide cross section of projects and are always keen to find routes to expand our own footprint. Through support from 'Working with Europe' we have been able to widen our engagement with partners across the EU. The confidence that comes with working with the team is extensive and has ensured that we can seek out opportunities which we often would have to pass up. Their expertise has ensured that we can focus our energies on what we do well and leave the hard bits to them. Thank you 'Working with Europe' team, keep it up.

My experience of working with WWE was very positive. They have a strong network of solid partners throughout Europe, which made it highly attractive for us to get involved. Communication was clear, frequent and pleasant. We are definitely planning on working with them again in the future.

I have worked with and collaborated a range of organisations over many years and the Working with Europe team is unquestionably both the most professional and most exciting to work with. They have experience allied to considerable insight and understanding of policy; its interpretation and application in a range of contexts, their writing is incisive and clear and they work impressively hard to succeed. Most importantly perhaps they have valid and relevant networks and partners and fully welcome and endorse the diversity that brings to their work. It's a pleasure to work with them.

It was just when I was reading the first documents published by the EC on ERASMUS+ (still "Erasmus for all", at that time, in 2013) that I intercepted one of the interesting social posts of Jan Gejel, from Working with Europe. My mind was populated with many ideas for innovative project proposals and I immediately realized that collaborating with Jan, Mireia and the rest of the team would be a good decision... as it actually was!

Working with Europe has opened the door for us in Europe, to full partnership in the development of innovative, creative and relevant models for promoting Lifelong Learning in our communities. The team of Working with Europe and especially our friends Jan Gejel and Mireia Masgrau, take part in our advisory board, in the development of the "Learning City" model and the establishment of the Israeli Center for Learning Cities in Modi'in.

Working with Europe offers professional knowledge, many years of experience, innovation and ways of thinking outside the box, which inspire us and give us a boost to comply with the quality standards of European projects.

Thanks to Mr. Gejel and his influence, we were able to reach stakeholders, to plan and to develop, in a short time, a working model for building and establishing a network of Learning Cities in Israel and for that, Jan Gejel is a friend of honor of the city of Modi'in and the Israeli center for Learning Cities.

Working with Europe - we are looking forward to further cooperation for the sake of our communities.

We have come in touch with Working with Europe while searching for reliable partners for EU funded projects and we cooperate since then. In comparison to other agencies active in project management and application writing, Working with Europe takes the issue very seriously and the applications are always of a great quality. Apart from that it is a pleasure to work with WWEU as they always react on time and they patiently explain everything to less experienced partners.

Mireia and Jan are two committed people, professionals, fighters and disruptive! They are not scared of the challenges, facing them with a lot of energy, using people like Cookie Box and myself, Oscar Garcia Pañella. Always out of the comfort zone, from realism and rigor, to nurture the research processes of good excuses that have to be solved to continue walking straight from the XXI century that we already opened a few years ago. Tempus fugit, Carpe Diem!

Collaboration with Jan Gejel and Working with Europe has been always on a professional level, communication has been quick, supportive, seeking solutions in case of questions. Like novices in the field of European projects we greatly appreciate the friendliness and helpful advice from the expert.

Working with Jan, Mireia and the rest of the WWEU team represented the kind of life-time experience that initiated promisingly and developed as an extremely fulfilling quest for real European values and high quality projecting work. WWEU is truly amazing, and they really make the difference in European project partnering. Their outstanding approach relies on sound principles and lasting values, which together with simplicity, commitment, and unwearied hardworking account for their impressive list of achievements and, as well, for their wide partner network. Being highly demanding but never disrespectful or dismissive of any potential partner confers them individuality and uniqueness. WWEU international team is made up of challenge loving professionals who are always eager to provide venturesome problem tailored solutions.

Stefan cel Mare University of Suceava will keep embarking with WWEU on future projects, and impart their visionary ideas. Special thanks to Jan Gejel, the mastermind behind everything, who keeps dedicating himself to drive REAL CHANGE in Europe.

The relation between Camera and Working with Europe began some years ago when we were looking to be added in European projects. We have worked and we are still working with them on several projects.

Jan and Mireia provide professional work, creative and responsive to the needs of all partners. They have extensive knowledge about the dynamics of European projects and creativity to propose innovative ones with high levels of quality in terms of content and in relation to partners. While showing adaptability to the needs of each of the partners and provide solutions for the development of projects. Jan and Mireia have offered us to participate in social projects in which the Chamber has provided expertise in entrepreneurship and business management. Highlight their extensive network of contacts and the level of quality they demand in the proposals presented.

It is a pleasure and a personal and institution enrichment to work with.

I got involved with Working with Europe through my volunteer work with one of its partners in two Erasmus+ projects. It has been an enormous pleasure working with the organisers, partners and participants and has provided me a great deal of intellectual stimulation in retirement. New ideas are constantly being thrown into the ring, discussions are deep and sometimes controversial while always aimed at achieving the best outcome for the project. The meetings, both local and transnational, are intense but great fun and extremely rewarding, as one meets committed participants from a variety of European countries and there is a fruitful exchange of experience. I really feel we are contributing to the creation of innovative approaches to thorny and challenging problems affecting the EU while also seeing a lot of personal learning and development.

For us working with you has been a big step, you have helped us in everything we needed to be able to apply for Erasmus + projects.

Also note that you've been the ones who put us in contact with other European educational institutions to participate in projects in both in 2014 and 2015 calls. In short, we can say that you've placed us in the map of European centers participating in the calls for Erasmus +. Without your help we would I think that we might still be still in the anonymity and no one knows us and ask us to participate with them.

Therefore we are very grateful, especially to you, Mireia.
